New Negotiations Open At White House

Trains Keep Running As Johnson Wins Agreement To Delay Strike 4 Of U.S. Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP)-The nation's trains kept running today after President Johnson persuaded unions and management to call off a scheduled midnight strike showdown. New negotiations open at the White House under his watchful eye.

It was touch and go almost up to the last minute before Johnson announced both sides had agreed to a 15-day delay to sit down once more in an effort to settle their long, snarled dispute over wages and working

The agreement came within less than two hours of the midnight deadline, when 200,000 members of five unions were to strike on nearly 200 railroads.

'The entire nation is grateful for the patriotic attitude of both the carriers and the brotherhoods," said Johnson in announcing postponement of the gravest labor crisis of his administration.

Johnson had indicated deep concern that a nationwide rail shutdown would cancel out the stimulus of the recent tax cut and seriously affect the U.S.

The largest previous attendance - 1,216 - heard astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. last year. President Eisenhower spoke to 1,150 in 1953.

The audience will be the largest gathering of news executives to hear the President since he succeeded to the office last November.

Besides leading publishers and editors of this country, the audience will include heads of four foreign press associations: Kiyoshi Iwamoto, general manager of Kyodo of Japan; Alan MacIntosh, chairman of the board of the South African Press Association and also of the Argus Newspapers of South Africa; Gillis Purcell, general manager of Canadian Press, and Gerald Long, general man-ager of Reuters of Great Brit-

The AP luncheon - a tradition of half a century - is preceded by a morning annual meeting of Associated Press members at which the yearly report of the association's board of directors is presented to the membership. Other business includes the election of six directors to the 18-man board to fill expiring terms.

The AP meeting opens publishers week, which attracts hundreds of news executives for sessions of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and other gatherings.

Who Administers Prices?

Allegations of price-fixing against eight major steel companies, including Republic Steel, and two steel industry excutives will start to unroll a ball of legal red tape that will keep a bevy of lawyers busy the rest of this decade.

It is easy to sympathize with Republic steel industry's efforts "to save the jobs of American steel workers and the investments of American stockholders" now are going to be handicapped by the necessity of answering government charges about things which allegedly happened from three to nine years ago.

THE QUIET TRUTH of the matter is that the American public neither understands nor supports what the government is trying to do in these cases.

Ostensibly, it is trying to keep powerful industrial combines from administering prices, in violation of federal laws requiring enterprise to live and die by the law of supply and demand.

But since these federal laws were enacted two generations ago, labor unions have been permitted to administer wage scales. Government collects uniformly punitive taxes. Raw materials and services tend to follow along on the same price levels. Competition, itself, is uni-

Even if manufacturers in the same industry never "stepped across the street" to see what their competitor was charging — even if competitors never posted their prices for all the world to see — prices would be closely similar in all cases and identical in some.

IT IS UP TO the government to prove the facts of the price-fixing conspiracy it says occurred.

It can convict no one on the circumstantial evidence that prices were similar. And while the governmnt is undertaking to do this and the defendants are trying to keep the government from proving its case, skeptics among us may wonder whether prices actually paid for carbon steel sheets were as "administered" as posted figures made them

The Hard Lesson

The need for repeated street safety lessons for youngsters has been pointed up at East Palestine this year.

Three students at the Captain Taggart School there have been injured and one killed when struck by cars near the school since Jan 1.

In each case, police report, the motorists have been driving at a safe speed; the youngsters simply did not obey the primary precautions of crossing streets.

With the approach of warmer weather and longer daylight hours, it is again time for parents and teachers to rehearse all the lessons of traffic safety for young people who will be outdoors more.

Drivers should know they have to be careful; boys and girls have to be taught. And taught again. And again.

Dissent In Alabama, Too

So much apprehensive gulping has been done about Gov. George C. Wallace's success in cornering a substantial Wisconsin vote for his Alabama-type platform in the burgeoning presidential campaign that acale-balancing is called for.

Experts admit they are puzzled by the success of a fire-eating "unreconstructed rebel" in a progressive northern state like Wisconsin. They don't know how to assess the overall significance of the Wallace vote any more than the blind men knew how to assess the overall significance of the elephant.

While they are struggling with guesses and rationalizations, it may help to look backward at the vote in the 1960 presidential race between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon.

In Alabama, a Republican presidential candidate in 1960 had no more chance to win than the Wallace presidential electors had in Wisconsin. Nevertheless, candidate Nixon polled 237,981 votes to 324,050 for the opposition, which included, besides Mr. Kennedy, Gov. Faubus of Arkansas and Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia. That was about 42 per cent of the Alabama presidential vote.

It shouldn't have been too surprising when Gov. Wallace captured upward of 30 per cent of the Democratic primary vote in Wisconsin last Tuesday.

There are dissenters to the reigning political powers in Alabama, too.

In fact, that seems to be what is happening this year. Dissenters to the powers that be are on the muscle.

What've You Done Lately

Like critics of the United Nations who want to destroy it because it isn't perfect, critics of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization never admit it once was useful light be useful again.

They give no heed to the fact European peace has been preserved during the 15 years NATO has been in effect. They give no thought to the fact it could continue to be the backbone of European security until 1969, when its members have the right to withdraw after 20 years. NATO's principal critic is the Soviet Union, whose foreign policy is directed to the harassment or dissolution of NATO. In this respect, NATO is like the U.S. foreign aid program. If it were as ineffectual as its critics claim it is, why would the Soviet Union want to get rid of it?

In the same line of reasoning, if the Soviet Union were as bubbling over with good will toward Europe as it claims to be, why would it want to get rid of

The miracle of postwar Europe cannot be credited to NATO alone, but it would have been impossible without NATO. On its 15th anniversary, with perhaps only five more years to live, NATO continues to be more impressive to the Soviet Union than to some of the nations it protected against the possibility of a massive Russian invasion until the United States could destroy the Russian heartland with nuclear bombs. That's all it was designed

Those who now are asking what NATO has done for them lately are repeating a classic error of reasoning.

Dear Nephew: You have flattered us by asking advice on a delicate matter how to keep from flipping your lid when preachers lie down in back of bulldozers and get squashed, when a good Tweedledum replaces a bad Tweedledee in Latin American countries, when decent people stand by silently while mayhem is committed and copperheadism raises its head again in the North.

Cotton Corners

Your Aunt Effie and I are going to flatter you by giving you an honest answer.

You will have to reject it. That's why we know it's honest. It is unthinkable that the advice we are going to give you could be accepted in the kind of a world you are inhabiting. That is precisely why it has become what it is - uninhabitable.

OUR ADVICE is to chuck it all and get back to reality.

Pull the plug on your television set. Don't unfold your newspaper. Keep the switch on the radio turned off. Except for a few magazines that deal in trivia and humor, forget about reading.

Give yourself a chance to heal up. You're like one of those sick rats they experiment with by keeping it in a maze until it has a breakdown. You've been in the maze too long.

Tell the people you work for that you are ready for your sabbatical. Ask them for a year's pay, as is customary for sabbaticals, and go to a quiet place. Like Insulate yourself from current strife and debate. Quit pouncing on misrepresentations and foibles. Put South America, the Middle East, Asia and Europe out of your mind. Think of fundamentals. This morning when your aunt and I were driving through town we saw a good-looking girl kissing a good-looking boy goodby before she got out of the car. She was making a production of it, right in front of the courthouse. A dozen people, including us, felt better. We were back to fundamentals. Walk in the woods. Take it slow enough to see what is happening underfoot and overhead.

Watch lambs being taken care of by solicitous mothers. Look at baby chickens. Get in your car and cruise in the countryside. Stay away from people. Concentrate on the world.

THE WORLD is all right, you see. It's only the people who are daffy. They get out of synchronization with nature.

You are out of synchronization. You need to learn how it feels to be synchronized. It's how you feel relative to the world that matters.

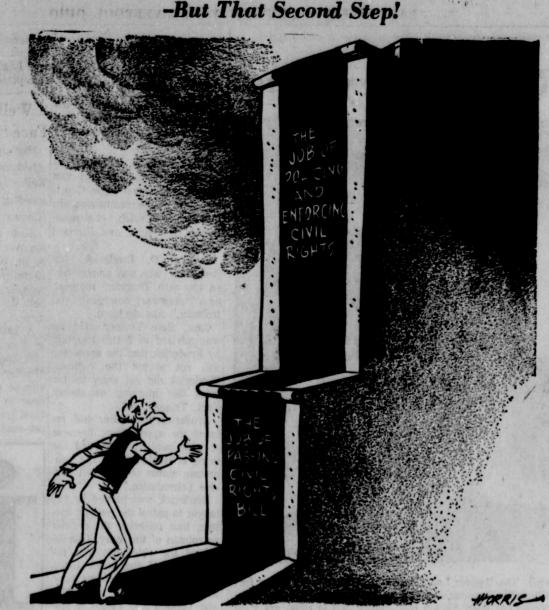

No one ever made sense out of people. It can't be done. Even before spreading bad news became big business it was a job to keep sane. Today we have experts dedicated to driving people crazy. No wonder the impression is being made everybody has gone mad.

It's up to you whether you join the loonies. We'd like to have you along the next time we go star-gazing, the best way we know to forget dishonesty in government, bloodshed in the streets, skulduggery behind closed doors and assorted colors of creepy subversives who will eat you up if you don't watch out! Boo.

Tell us how you make out. COTTON CORNERS UNCLE GEORGE

He covered 120 feet in 12 seconds. Later that day, in one of four flights. Wilbur stayed aloft 50 seconds and covered 852

Much of the blame for opposition to apartheid policies is attributed to the Jews. A South African writer of Jewish extraction summed up the Nationalists' case against the Jews this way:

It was a symbol of urgency in the conduct of public service. It was dramatic evidence that the dedication and energy of the Kennedy administration was not myth but fact. It meant people were working late. It meant the taxpayer was getting his money's worth of public

The symbol has been reversed under the aegis of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The predominent theme of his administration is economy, not urgency, in federal government, and the darkened Washington building is one sign. The White House these days is as dark as Jane Eyre's Thornfield Manor.

Except for two pale yellow lights outside the front door and a window or two in the President's second-floor living suite, no light shines.

On a clammy night, when the Potomac fog creeps up from Foggy Bottom and envelops Pennsylvania Ave., the Executive Mansion is gloomy and

Recently, in obvious attempt to follow suit, the Defense Department ordered Pentagon workers to lower office blinds before leaving work, in order to "project a favorable public image of government buildings."

As a result, the Pentagon's 7,-600 windows are as dark as the White House - a fact which prompts these inquiries: Is the army of General Servof broad directives, things are inevitably done. Mr. Johnson came from the Texas ranchland, where nobody wanted to exceed the monthly minimum REA light bill. It made as much sense to turn out a light when you left the room as it did to turn off a faucet after you had washed your hands His instinct to do this is genuine. People close to him tell a dozen stories about this trait. Shortly after he entered the White House, he complained that the light bill was too big. A subsequent directive to White House employes ordered that only necessary lights be turned on at the mansion.

The key word is "necessary."
The President very often refers to the White House, when talking to visitors, as "your house." If this is so, and they want to look at it at night, they are having a hard time.

the myth of Soviet economwhen others were predicting that the Russians not only were going to catch up with the

PROF. NUTTER in his inter-trouble today, particularly as a result of the gamble they made in 1958 when they em-space program, believing at that time the agricultural prob-

The gamble, according to Prof.

"They sought a 10-billion-dollar loan once, didn't they?" was the next question, and Prof. Nutter replied as follows:
"That's what they hope for.

What they would like more than anything else is some way to get the resources they need right now and defer the paytee, said that the American peoment until some other time ple must overcome "the myth when they hope they'll be in a that trade with Communist countries is a compact with the devil." the United States should take advantage of "these periods of weakness if we're going to get any changes started." He was then asked: "Under those terms, was the wheat deal a mistake?' "The way in which it was done," replied Prof. Nutter, "was a mistake. We should have bargained."

MERE NEGOTIATION is by itself harmless, but too often it results in appeasement and surrender. If it was desirable for the United States to use the sale of wheat as a way of currying favor with the Soviet government, the theory which Prof. Nutter expounds would mean that, before any such transaction was approved, the Soviets should have been required, for example, to get out of Cuba. Certainly if the Soviet government not only withdrew its military "technicians" from Castro's apparatus but also simultaneously took away its agents and subversives from all other Latin-American countries. the United States would be better off than by merely approving a wheat deal and getting nothing else in return but a few dollars of profit for some wheat dealers.

Premier Khrushchev's speech in Hungary also was significant in relation to the whole controversy between the East and the West and the foreign aid program. He warned the members of the East European Communist bloc that the Western imperalists were trying to run the world by offering "a piece of bacon or goulash" in the form of credits.

He told his allies to be careful not to involve themselves too deeply with the United States. but said, in effect, there was no harm in taking something for nothing-as he himself would

FROM THE SOVIET point of view, it seems easy to satisfy some of the would-be spokesmen for America, especially those who are ready to "do business with Khrushchev" in the 1960s as so many Westerners were ready to "do business with Hitler" in the 1930s.

As the cold war goes on, will the Western governments be foolish enough to make concessions without getting anything in return by way of respect for the sovereignty and independence of the smaller countries, including the emancipation of enslaved peoples?

Thresher Anniversary

By James Calogero

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. To many, this is a date of quiet solemnity, for a year ago today the United States suffered its greatest single submarine disaster.

On the morning of April 10, 1963, the nuclear submarine Thresher sank in the Atlantic 220 miles east of Boston with the loss of 129 lives. In war and in peace, never have so many men perished in one American submarine. The Navy says that the men of the Thresher did not die in vain. Out of her loss, say Navy officials in Washington, came new techniques in design and a new approach to underwater salvage studies. The Thresher and her men lie on the ocean bottom in water a mile and a half deep. Debris from the Thresher has been photographed and even recovered and the Navy has an underwater picture of her prow -but the hull itself has never been located. From Thresher's loss came the formation of the deep submergence systems review group under Rear Adm. Edward C. Stephan.

"Our ability to operate on the ocean floor and in its depths is at a level corresponding to that of aviation about 1910," he said.

"The entire undersea area will have a tremendous effect upon future military operations."

The Navy has but one vehicle which can reach the depth in which Thresher lies-a fragilelooking bathyscaphe.

The first of its kind. Trieste made several dives in the area of Thresher's loss and came up with a number of photographs of debris, identified as from the broken submarine.

A new, improved bathyscape, Trieste II, is due from San Diego, Calif., next month to make new attempts to locate Thresher.

No public observances were planned for this first anniversary of the tragic loss, but the Navy remembered each family.

To each of the 129 families went special mementos-a specially published book, containing pictures, tributes and messages of condolences from all over the world; an 18-inch model of Thresher, and the ship's plaque.

The book will go only to the next of kin of Thresher's 129 victims.

Court Affirms Club Penalty

Common Pleas Judge Joel H.
Sharp Thursday upheld the State Liquor Control Commission's 150-day suspension handed the Veterans Social Club in East End last Aug. 29 for liquor law violation.

Operators of the club at 1042-44 Pennsylvania Ave. asked court at Lisbon Oct. 9 to grant a stay, but Judge Sharp yester-day affirmed the commission's order.

Unless the club carries the case to the 7th District Appeals Court, the commission now can go ahead and impose the penalty, which had been suspended pending Judge Sharp's ruling. The original suspension was for the period of Oct. 10, 1963, to March 8, 1964.

Judge Sharp commented that the decision of the commission depended largely on the testi-mony of the state investigator and the former president of the club, which he pointed out "was dramatically opposed."

"The court is of the opinion that the commission, which heard and saw the witnesses. is in a much better position to determine the credibility of such

PHLEBITIS IS STUBBORN

Q. During an attack of phlebitis my doctor pre-scribed some tablets which I took for something less than a month. My leg is some better but the doctor now says that additional medicine won't help. Why not? I need to get back on the job.

A. Phlebitis, which simply means that a vein has become congested and inflamed, is not something that can be cleared up overnight. Drugs help subdue the initial inflammation and possible infection but after that it may be largely a matter of staying off the leg as much as possible until normal reparative processes take over. This may require a longer period of rest than you think you can afford, but don't go against your doctor's orders. Phlebitis is stubborn and you certainly don't want to risk unnecessary prolongation of the illness.

A. Yes, provided the dentist contacts the physician before any teeth are extracted. Armed with the knowledge of your mother's condition and what medicines, if any, she is taking, the dentist can "tailor" his approach to fit the circumstances.

New Dividing Line . . .

Member schools of the Ohio High School Athletic Association are in the process of voting on a new dividing line for separating Class A and Class AA schools. The new dividing line would mean a big change in basketball.

The current system shows schools with 181 boys are listed as Class A and those with 182 or over must compete in the Class AA ranks.

The big problem is that schools with 182 boys or more must compete in the unlimited group in which enrollments go as high as 1,500.

There has been some talk of establishing a new class and have AAA, AA and A classifications. However, the new OHSAA proposal may be the answer.

The plan is to move into Class AA any four-year school with 251 or more boys. There are now 397 schools in the A division and 513 in the AA bracket.

If the member schools approve, the realignment, the second of the schools with 250 in the A division and 400 in the A division and 510 in the A division and 400 in the A division and 510 in the A di If the member schools approve the realignment, Tiger Boosters 19.

PURDUE UNIVERSITY landed the big prize in Ohio Valley football pond when Bob DiStefano, the clever quarterback from Martins Ferry, announced earlier this week that he had accepted a scholarship to the Lafayette, Ind., school.

Voted the player of the year in Ohio, DiStefano picked Purdue over 35 other schools. He was interested in Notre Dame, but finally decided on Purdue.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) -The University of Oklahoma's Board of Regents, persevering to the end, hung in there Thursday and named Gomer Jones as head football coach and athletic director.

Some folks were mildly surprised at Thursday's action since it was widely reported they did it a month ago. As it turned out, some of the regents thought they did it a month ago too-but they didn't.

Apparently, it's not as easy to hire a football coach as the layman might think. Some people think Gomer was hired Jan. 19 to replace former Coach Bud Wilkinson, who entered politics. But what really happened on Jan. 19 is the regents said they were going to hire Gomer. Back on Feb. 13 the regents met and were about to make it official but a technicality arose. It seems they hired Gomer before Wilkinson's resignation was effective. A committee was appointed to find out when Wilkinson quit.

A month later they met again.

After the meeting, several regents told reporters a four-year contract at $23,400 a year had been approved for Jones.

But when it came time to adchoice for his sterling play in THE OMNI CLUB, headed by McINTIRE described a 22-20 it wasn't acted upon.

QUESTION: Why and how do flying fish fly? *

ANSWER: Almost all flying fish glide rather than fly; after lifting themselves above the water's surface they taxi along to pick up speed, much as a plane does before it takes off. Notice that the lower tail fin is longer than the upper one. The tip of this fin remains in the water while the fish picks up speed by vibrating it. Then, with the enormously enlarged pectoral fins spread out like wings, the little flying fish takes off for a glide through the air, from 150 to as far as 1000 feet. It is possible for them to come down and by vibrating take off a second and even a third time. During the flight the wings remain stationary, like those of an airplane.

Does a flying fish fly just for the fun of it? No, this is his way of escaping from certain large fish, such as the bonito, which are his deadly enemies. When such a big predator goes for him, the smart little flying fish can take off and land so far ahead that there's little chance for the other fish to catch up. In the rivers of South America a kind of fish has been reported which actually does fly, for short distances, by flapping his caudal fins up and down.

FOR YOU TO DO: Skip some light thin stones on the surface of a pond, and see how they shoot along.
